FilmFreeway: What It Is

FilmFreeway is an online platform that allows filmmakers to submit their films to film festivals around the world for selection consideration. It serves as a central marketplace where filmmakers can discover, submit to, and manage entries for over 12,000 film festivals and contests, including many that are Academy Award and BAFTA accredited¹²⁷. The platform is widely used in the independent film industry and has become the leading film festival submission service since the closure of Withoutabox in 2019¹.

Ownership of FilmFreeway

FilmFreeway is owned by 2.PUBLIC/art & entertainment media/filmAndTV/resources/software/Backstage, a well-known publication and entertainment-industry portal. The acquisition took place in September 2021, making Backstage the parent company of FilmFreeway¹⁴⁵. The platform is headquartered in Las Vegas, Nevada⁵.

Key Points

- FilmFreeway is a commercial website founded in 2014 in Canada, now serving filmmakers and festivals worldwide¹.
 - It enables filmmakers to submit their work to thousands of festivals, manage entries, and retain full rights to their intellectual property².
 - Backstage acquired FilmFreeway in September 2021 and is its current owner and operator¹⁴⁵.
 - The platform is recognized as the world's leading online film festival submissions service, partnering with major industry organizations³.
